
Planning to fly Get the best price airfare

Contributed by admin
Sunday, 06 August 2006
Last Updated Tuesday, 08 August 2006

Posted by: great stuff

Best price fare can be easily obtained. You need to have a bit of patience and you can easily get it. You must also have the capacity to search the net in case you want the best price fare. You should also be flexible in your schedule and ready to spend time on the internet.

The best bet is to book your trip in advance. It will be good if you buy your ticket 14 days before rather than buying it three days before the tour because that will cost you less. However you have no option other than last minute fares in case of emergencies. A few seats are kept reserved by some airlines for such emergency situations. Go for last minute fare only if there are no other options available.

You can also get a good deal in case you are flying during the middle of the week. Weekends flights are almost always fully booked and these flights are comparatively less booked. Low occupancy is also seen in early morning or late night flights. You can use these flights in case you want a cheaper fare.

There are some sites which mail information on the availability of lowest priced tickets. You must get yourself registered with such sites. You will be saved from doing the search yourself. You will get all the information about the travel route and days.

There are a number of travel sites on the net. You can look at these sites to get the best price fare. Many of these sites offer special discounts on several sectors in collaboration with the airlines. However you need to visit a number of sites in order to get the best discount because such discount varies according to sites.

There are some travel sites which use a robot to find out about the best price fare on the net. You need to enter your travel date and destination and the searching is done by the site. So you can use these sites to get the best rates!

Never forget to check out the airline sites. Airlines may have cheaper tickets available on their sites. These tickets are usually for those flights which are not occupied much. So visit the airline sites regularly in order to keep yourself updated about these tickets!